

Your Grandfather's Road

16 March, 2010 – As part of IACT College's culture keeping education relevant to the industry, the team of filmmakers from Sunny Stories were invited to give a talk to our students to share their experiences in the film industry, and to share their work.

Sunny Stories is currently working on a locally crowd-sourced film called 'Your Grandfather's Road', and their visit to IACT College was also to promote the film, and to get students involved in generating ideas. Manesh Nesaratnam, the director of the project, had an interactive talk with students about process of writing and directing the film.

The students were very responsive with constructive questions. Manesh had to answer a wide range of questions relating to the film and TV industry, from the quality of local films, financing a film, to job opportunities in the film industry, among others.

IACT College students are often given opportunities like this- attending talks, working with real clients, and going for industry visits, to ensure students are well exposed to the going-ons in the communications industry.
